

Les Bazso — Province

Cutting-edge teaching technology

University of B.C. researcher Markus Steiniger (left) holds a freshly cut mortise-and-tenon joint while Sigi Liebmann stands at the controls of the new Hundegger K2, a $450,000 joinery machine on loan to the university's advanced wood-processing centre from its manufacturer for use in wood-science teaching and research projects.